Radiation Oncologist Thomas Kim, M.D., Joins UAMS

LITTLE ROCK — Radiation oncologist Thomas Kim, M.D., has joined the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences (UAMS) and sees patients in the UAMS Radiation Oncology Center. He serves as an assistant professor in the UAMS College of Medicine Department of Radiation Oncology.

Kim’s medical and research interests include breast, gynecologic and gastrointestinal malignancies.

He received his medical degree from Brown University in Providence, Rhode Island. He completed his internship at Boston Medical Center and radiation oncology residency at Northwestern Memorial Hospital in Chicago.

Kim is a member of the American Society of Therapeutic Radiology and Oncology, the Radiological Society of North America, the American Brachytherapy Society and the American College of Radiology.

UAMS is the state’s only health sciences university, with colleges of Medicine, Nursing, Pharmacy, Health Professions and Public Health; a graduate school; a hospital; a northwest Arkansas regional campus; a statewide network of regional centers; and seven institutes: the Winthrop P. Rockefeller Cancer Institute, the Jackson T. Stephens Spine & Neurosciences Institute, the Myeloma Institute, the Harvey & Bernice Jones Eye Institute, the Psychiatric Research Institute, the Donald W. Reynolds Institute on Aging and the Translational Research Institute. It is the only adult Level 1 trauma center in the state. UAMS has 2,870 students, 799 medical residents and six dental residents. It is the state’s largest public employer with more than 10,000 employees, including about 1,200 physicians who provide care to patients at UAMS and its regional campuses throughout the state, Arkansas Children’s Hospital, the VA Medical Center and Baptist Health.
